NCO'S GO "HARD CORE"

The story of how the Air Force is retraining thousands of "soft core" noncommissioned officers for "hard core" billets is told in a special report on Page 11 by Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Kinney, USAF, Commander of the 3345th Technical Training Wing at Chanute AFB, Ill.

Pay Hearings Set, Stall On Proficiency

A "full scale inquiry" into Pentagon manpower policies affecting military pay will be opened 21 August before a Senate Armed Services Subcommittee.

Leadoff witness will be Mr. Ralph J. Cordiner, president of the General Electric Company.

He is reported eager for a chance to tell Congress his committee thinks the Department of Defense can save up to $5 billion a year by 1962 and improve combat readiness with a readjustment in what are described as "Methuselah" pay scales.

The Journal will cover all pay hearings extensively. Next week's issue will con-

Services Must Whack, Cut and Close In Budget Crisis; Phase II Coming

The Services were driving hard, and were being driven, this week to cut 100,000 military personnel and thousands of civilians, and to chop $2 billion from the late fiscal '57 spending rate by the end of this year.

Phase I of what obviously will be a continuing economy campaign demands that the Armed Forces draw the purse strings shut at a $38 billion expenditure level. At the start of this fiscal year, the Services were spending at a rate of about 40.2 billion.

Phase II will come late in the year, when further manpower cuts are expected in advance of the FY '59 budget presentation to Congress.

The next budget probably will set a 2.5 million military manpower ceiling, further cuts in the Air Force wing strength, mothballing of additional Navy ships,

Air Force Generals Still Are Youngest; Army Has 38 Year B/G; Navy Flags Older

The average age of Air Force brigadier generals is 47 years and 7 months.

In the Army, the average age of one-star officers is 49 years and 4 months.

The Navy said that the average age of its rear admirals—both upper and lower half—is 53 years and 1 month.

Analysis of the Marine Corps lineal list shows that the average age of brigadier generals is just over 51 years.

THE Air Force still leads all the Services in bringing youthful officers to star rank.

More than 56% of the 39 Air Force officers just promoted (THE JOURNAL 10 August) to temporary brigadier general are under 45 years of age. All but four are under 50.

Twelve of the new Air Force generals, or 31%, have been in service less than 20 years. All but nine have served less than 25 years.

The recent Navy selections to Rear Admiral (THE JOURNAL 3 August) ranged in age from 45 to 51. Seventy-five per cent of this group were under 50. Each entered the Navy between 1929 and 1933.

Of the Army's 13 new one star holders (THE JOURNAL 10 August), 23% are under

AF Sets Tighter Pilot Agreements; All Services Study Obligated Tours (NAVY HOLLOWAY GRADS DON'T STAY—PAGE 2)

THE Air Force has announced that future pilots must agree to a five-year tour instead of the present three-year requirement and said this applies to those now in early stages of training.

AFROTC graduates not electing the five-year tour will be given non-flying duties for three years.

The Air Force said "this change is dictated in the interest of economy and better retention." The Air Force loses two out of three pilots at the end of a three-year tour. It takes 75 per cent of the three-year tour to train a pilot for combat ready status.

The Navy, in answer to a query, said it has no present plans to increase the obligated service for its pilots. Some need only serve two years after completion of flying training.

It was learned at the same time that all the Services have been asked to survey policies regarding obligated service, such as for Academy graduates and persons sent to civilian schools.

Fight Brews Over Substandard Housing; Senate Provides For Inadequate BOQs

A hot fight is shaping up between the House and Senate Armed Services Committees over a proposal to reduce rents for 36,000 military families and an indeterminate number of bachelor officers.

At stake is a savings of more than $15 million annually for members of the Services who are forced to occupy substandard Government quarters.

Both houses of the Congress are agreed that Service families living in inferior dwellings should not have to forfeit their entire rental allowance.

They cannot, however, get together on the length of time the rent cuts should be in effect. The House says the authority should be provided for only a limited period, during which time the Services must get rid of their inadequate housing. The Senate says the current housing shortage makes it impractical to destroy or remove usable units if no other housing is available, so the authority

World's Largest Geographical Command Under Admiral Stump Covers 85 Million Square Miles, Half Million People

THE largest military command in history—the new U. S. Pacific Command—is now in full operation.

Covering nearly one-half the earth's surface, the command, under Admiral Felix B. Stump, USN, is a colossus. At the same time it is a trim, flexible, highly-efficient and capable military organization.

The command contains over 85 million square miles of land and water from the Pacific coast of the Western Hemisphere to the eastern coast of Asia where the boundary cuts the Indian Ocean in half and extends directly southward to the South Pole.

The northern boundary slants in a southwesterly direction to a point 1,500 miles west of Eureka, Calif., and then westward and northward to the southern tip of the Kamchatka Peninsula.

Throughout this vast area, all U. S. Armed Forces are under the command of Admiral Stump, Commander in Chief, Pacific Area Command (CINPAC).

CINPAC provides unified direction and control over the officers and men on 400 ships, 23 major air bases, 4,000 Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force planes, and scores of bases, stations and installations.

HALF-A-MILLION PERSONS compose the command—100,000 Army, 200,000 Navy, 115,000 Air Force, and 70,000 Marine Corps. The majority of these units are located in the Far East in Japan, Korea, the Philippines and on Taiwan and Okinawa, with most of the remainder in the Hawaiian Islands and on the U. S. West Coast.

ADMIRAL STUMP'S COMMAND coordinates all activities of the U. S. Armed Forces in the vast area, and lays the groundwork for successful military cooperation with our Allies.

When it was created in July, CINPAC replaced the previously separate commands in the Pacific Area. Command headquarters were established at Hawaii.

Thousands Of Careers Go Begging Among Holloway Graduates; 85 Per Cent Resign

THE alarming resignation rate of Service Academy graduates assumed added significance this week with disclosure that the Navy's secondary source for career officers also is barely holding its head above water.

More than 85 per cent of all Holloway Plan graduates, educated at government expense, have turned down commissions in the Regular Navy upon completion of required service.

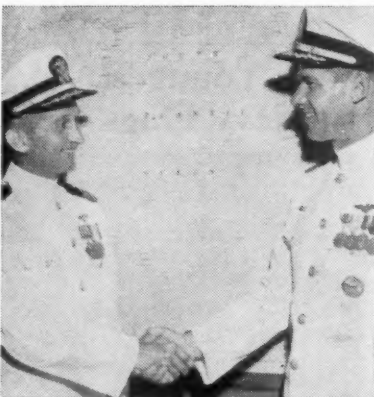

Although the Holloway NROTC program was designed to provide large numbers of career officers, only 846 of the 5,999 members of the first five graduating classes have elected to stay in the Navy.

All of the Holloway students receive Government-paid, four-year college scholarships (including subsistence). More than 15,400 have entered the program so far, and, if current trends continue, another 2,000 will begin their first classes under the Plan this fall.

The Navy has testified that it costs $8,000 to provide a four-year scholarship for a NROTC student. Thus, the cost of training the 15,478 men who have entered the program to date is $123,824,000.

At the inception of the program, the Navy said a basic tenet of the Plan was that graduates of the Naval Academy and the Regular NROTC would "jointly supply the officer strength needed by our postwar Navy."

UNDER THE HOLLOWAY PLAN, graduates of the NROTC program are commissioned in the Regular Navy and required to serve for three years on active duty. Prior to the end of the third year they must indicate whether they desire to be retained as permanent officers.

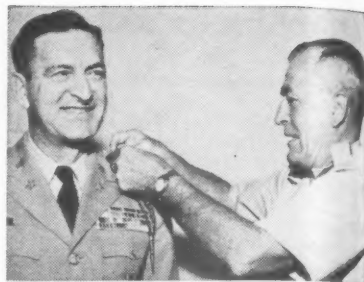

CDR. HENRY W. DRUM, USN (left), new C.O. of Heavy Photographic Squadron 62 at the U. S. Naval Air Station, Norfolk, Va., receives congratulations and best wishes from outgoing skipper Cdr. Edward B. Johnson, USN.

The first class entered college in 1946 and was graduated in 1950. Of the 800 members of the graduating class only 80 elected to stay on as career officers when their required service was up in 1953.

The following year, the percentage of those electing Naval careers rose to slightly less than 15 per cent (205 out of a class which numbered 1375).

This pattern continued in 1955 when 217 out of a class of 1411 accepted career appointments.

He is, nevertheless, one of the oldest officers appointed to one-star rank this year, with his 51 years ranking him in the elder 10% of the group.

Army General Maroun follows closely upon General Kershaw's mark, having entered the service eight months earlier in September 1941. Air Force Brig. Gen. Robert H. Warren and Francis C. Gideon follow a close third and fourth in terms of shortness of service, with 17 years each to their credit.

Here is a percentage breakdown by ages of the new appointments to one star rank:

Graduates of the class of 1955 (about 1220 in number) will not be required to make their choice until next year. Meanwhile, two other classes have graduated about 2400 officers who will face similar decisions in 1959 and 1960. Three other classes (those entering in 1954, 1955 and 1956) add up to an additional 5830 potential officers who will have to decide in the years just ahead whether or not to continue their Naval careers.

All of the Holloway graduates who do not request permanent retention as career officers must be released to inactive duty by the Navy unless they specifically ask for temporary continuation on the active list.

Here is the full record of the program to date.

Pay And Prestige Of 3- and 4-Star Officer Preserved Under Defense Department Plan

The Pentagon has asked Congress to enact legislation to prevent loss of rank, pay and allowances for three- and four-star officers when they are transferred from one such post to another, or when they are hospitalized.

The President is authorized to designate Army, Navy and Air Force officers for positions of importance and responsibility which carry the grade of general, admiral, lieutenant general and vice admiral. However, the law is so worded that upon detachment from the designated duty the officer reverts to his regular grade and lineal position.

This means that an officer who has served in a three- or four-star post and who is detached to take another such post of equal or greater importance, loses the rank, pay and money allowances to which he has been entitled until he takes over his new duties.

As an example the Pentagon cited the case of Admiral Arthur W. Radford, USN-

Ret. Prior to his appointment as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Admiral Radford was Commander-in-Chief, Pacific. He was detached from that duty and ordered to report to Washington as prospective JCS Chairman. He reported on 10 July 1953 and from that date until 15 Aug. 1953, when he assumed his new duties, his pay was reduced about $200.

The Pentagon says it is inequitable that an officer should suffer a complete loss of prestige or of pay and allowances during the brief periods which intervene between his detachment and the assumption of his new duties or during hospitalization.

The proposed legislation provides that senior officers, when detached for transfer to another such position, or when hospitalized for periods up to six months, shall be entitled during the interval to have the grade formerly held or the grade of the new position, whichever is the lower.

Flight Pay Policies Held By 10,000; Premium Boost Possible; Govt. Plan Urged INSURANCE rates for the Air Force Association's Flight Pay Protection Plan may be raised.

This was disclosed by AFA officials in Washington, D.C., who explained that the present rates were established on a trial basis, subject to revision as they gained more experience with the plan.

Premiums are now 1% of the insured's yearly flight pay.

Total premium income for the first year of operation is about $220,000. Benefit payments are expected to exceed $200,000 mark.

To date, 88 claims have been paid under the AFA plan which is underwritten by the Aetna Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn.

Air Force officials are so pleased with the idea of Flight Pay Insurance that some high ranking officers have suggested the plan eventually be taken over by the government and made automatically applicable to all flyers drawing incentive pay.

Eventual government operation also was endorsed by AFA spokesmen.

Significant benefit of the present plan to the Air Force, they said, is that fewer officers are hesitant to report their ailments for fear of losing flight pay. As a result, Air Force officials foresee greatly increased operational safety and efficiency.

All Air Force Association members who receive incentive flying pay are eligible for Flight Pay Insurance, which will pay them up to two years flight pay for periods of sickness or physical disability.

More than 10,000 policies are now in force. The average value of each policy is $4600.

Under the terms of the policy, payments cannot be made for loss of flight pay because of administrative suspension from flying status, "fear of flying," injury caused by war, voluntary suspension, injury resulting from insanity or violation of Air Force regulations.

COL. PHYLLIS D. S. GRAY, WAF Director, retires from active duty this month. Above, she is presented the Legion of Merit for outstanding service to the Air Force by Lt. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, Jr., USAF, Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel. Colonel Gray's successor is Lt. Col. Emma J. Riley, formerly WAF Staff Director at USAFE in Wiesbaden, Germany, who will be succeeded by Lt. Col. Marion L. Watt, formerly with ARDC in Baltimore, Md.

The plan does not cover persons whose primary duty is parachute jumping.

Protection under the plan is also available to members of other Services who either are or become AFA members.

House Group Approves Equal Status For Army In Top Level Air Research

Representation for the Army equal to that given the Air Force and the Navy on the nation's top level aeronautical research organization, the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, has been voted by the House Committee on Armed Services.

Under the measure now awaiting action by the House, the Army would have two of its officers on the NACA, the same representation as is now accorded to the Air Force and the Navy.

Formal request for such representation was made by Secretary of the Army Wilber Brucker. After study of the proposal it was approved by the NACA and concurred in by the representatives of the Air Force and the Navy. NACA made the formal request to Congress.

In its report recommending enactment of the bill, the House Committee said:

"The Army has responsibility in the field of aeronautics through extensive research and development programs in certain types of missiles and aircraft. Representatives of the Department of the Army at the present time serve on certain NACA technical committees and subcommittees. Currently, there are two representatives of the Department of the Army on each of the NACA Committees on Aerodynamics, Power Plants for Aircraft, Aircraft Construction, and Operating Problems.

"In addition, the Department of the Army has one representative on each of the following NACA Subcommittees: Fluid Mechanics, High-Speed Aerodynamics, Aerodynamic Stability and Control, Automatic Stabilization and Control, Low-Speed Aerodynamics, Helicopters, Aircraft Fuels, Combustion, Lubrication and Wear, Powerplant Controls, Powerplant Materials, Rocket Engines, Aircraft Loads, Aircraft Structural Materials, Meteorological Problems, Flight Safety, and Aircraft Noises. The Army has two representatives each on NACA Subcommittees on Engine Performance and Operation, Aircraft Structures, Vibration and Flutter, and Icing Problems.

MAJ. THOMAS E. HALL (right), Army Transportation Corps Industrial Trainee, who has been stationed at Hiller Helicopters, Palo Alto, Calif. since August, 1956, has been assigned to a unit in Germany. Saying good-bye to him in photo above is Bryce Wilson, Customer Relations Manager for Hiller Helicopters. Replacing Major Hall, and due to arrive for duty at the Hiller plant on 20 Aug., will be Maj. William Kilmer, who comes to Palo Alto from the Army Aviation School, Ft. Rucker, Ala., where he was TC Liaison Officer.

"As is evident from the above, the Department of the Army is concerned with many facets of NACA's aeronautical research program. This bill recognizes the equal status within the Department of Defense of the Air Force, Navy, and Army by making the Army a party to the considerations of NACA programs at the top level as well as on the subcommittees. This proposal was made after due consideration by the Secretary of the Army and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, the representatives of the Air Force and Navy concurring."

DISTINCTIVE UNIT INSIGNIA for military personnel of the staff and faculty of the U. S. Army Logistics Management Center, Ft. Lee, Va. will soon be available. The emblem consists of a blue shield with a black star in its center. Behind the apex is a gold key and rising above the key is a flaming torch. Intertwined through these objects is a gold scroll bearing the motto in black enamel, "Opes Tractare" (To Manage Our Resources Wisely). The key, the storekeeper's symbol, indicates that supply is the principal subject taught at USALMC. The black star from the badge of the General Staff is symbolical of the Army-wide application of the Center's programs. The torch is for enlightenment and learning and thus represents the training functions of the organization.

2 COMBAT SERVICES

Senator Francis Case (R-S. D.) has suggested the creation of a special Presidential commission to examine the structure of the Defense Department.

The commission would consider the possible simplification of our present Armed Forces structure "by creating two basic combat services of land-based air and sea-based air."

Today's realities, the Senate Armed Services Committee member states, "call for two basic air-age combat forces."

He also suggests that the commission also consider such questions as:

1—Are we slipping into a dangerous Maginot-line type of defense planning by spending too much on point defense systems?
2—Is it too expensive to let each Service interpret its own role, as witness the current missile rivalry.

3—Are we wasting the abilities of outstanding men by not permitting interservice transfers?

4—Should the airlift be transferred to the Army, or should the Army become an integral part of a land-based air wing of the Armed Forces, integrated into the ADC and TAC?

5—What economies can be achieved by further joint use of procurement, storage, hospitalization, transportation, and other facilities of a common character?

The commission, Senator Case suggests, could be composed of the Armed Forces' senior retired officers.

SUPPOSE YOU HAD TO COUNT 8 MILLION 730 THOUSAND DOLLARS

You'll have to admit it's a lot of money. During 1956 nearly 300,000 members of USAA joyfully counted their portion of this total that was returned to them in liberal savings on their automobile insurance.

Every year officers of the U.S. Armed Forces, a preferred risk group*, save big money on USAA automobile insurance. Currently stateside members are saving 36% from standard rates.

Such liberal savings are possible because USAA operates as a non-profit association, managed and directed by active and retired officers of the U.S. Armed Forces. No salesmen are employed nor are any commissions paid. Selling is done by mail.

Attorneys and claims adjusters are near at hand throughout the United States and in the foreign areas served by USAA to quickly and fairly serve members in the event of an accident.

USAA has been serving the services since 1922. So, when it's time to insure—insure with confidence—give yourself the best, and save too. Insure with USAA!

No matter whether you are stateside, or overseas, USAA is as close as your nearest mailbox, telephone or telegraph office. Your USAA insurance becomes effective as of postmarked time of application, unless a later date is specified.

Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service, Coast and Geodetic Survey; officers and warrant officers of the National Guard and Reserve when ordered to extended active Federal duty, (afterwards in civilian life they may continue or later renew their insurance, so long as they retain their commissions or warrants in the National Guard or Reserve); the widows of such officers and warrant officers so long as their status is not changed by remarriage.

USAA operates in the United States, its possessions and territories; Canada, Cuba and the Canal Zone; Japan, the Philippines, and certain U. S. bases in the Pacific, as well as in Western Continental Europe.

What difference is there between one broker and another?

They can both buy or sell virtually any security you name.

They both usually charge the same commission on any transaction.

So what's the difference?

That's a fair question — but a tough one for the individual investor to answer since it involves comparison of one broker with another on points like these:

Differences in customer service

Differences in physical facilities

Differences in research aid

Differences in personnel training and—most important of all—

Differences in fundamental policy.

It's not our place, obviously, to compare ourselves with any other broker. That's the investor's job.

But we feel it is our responsibility to simplify his job by telling him everything he might want to know about our operation.

That's why we've always published an Annual Report, mailed it to every customer, and offered it to any other interested person.

That's why we've just published a 32-page pamphlet entitled —

"This is Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane"

We'd be more than glad to send you a copy, for it tells you exactly who we are, how we operate, and what we stand for.

LCdr. Shannon Gets Fourth Atomic Sub

The Navy will launch its fourth nuclear powered submarine, the Swordfish (SSN 579), 27 August, at the Portsmouth, N. H., Naval Shipyard.

First such ship to be built in a Naval facility, the Swordfish is the second of four 2,400 ton SKATE-class nuclear subs under construction.

RAdm. Chester C. Smith, Deputy U. S. Representative to the NATO Standing Group, will be principal speaker at the launching ceremony.

Mrs. Eugene C. Rider of Newport, R. I., widow of Cdr. K. E. Montross, commander of the first Swordfish when it was lost on war patrol in January 1945, will be the ship's sponsor.

Scheduled to join the fleet in the fall of 1958, the new Swordfish is a 257-foot twin screw attack submarine. It is smaller than the Nautilus and Seawolf, but larger than WWII fleet submarines.

Her nuclear reactor was built by Westinghouse Electric Corporation.

First commanding officer of the new submarine will be LCdr. Shannon D. Cramer, jr., who recently completed a tour of duty in the office of the Director of Research and Development, Atomic Energy Commission, Washington, D. C.

Fleet Admiral Leahy Takes "Iowa" Review

Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, the Navy's senior flag officer, reviews the mass graduation of recruits at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill., 17 August, as a feature of Iowa Homecoming Week.

The Admiral is a native of Iowa.

The Great Lakes Homecoming Program started 1 June and continues through 5 October. Each week a different midwestern or southern state is spotlighted.

So far, about two million "alumni" have been invited by the Navy to revisit the training center.

Since the Center opened in 1905, it has trained 10 million recruits and 200,000 technicians.

Marines Gain Officers As Services Cut Back

As the other Services cut officer strengths, the Marine Corps will be adding to its officer ranks.

Marine Corps Headquarters is shooting for an officer end-strength of 17,100 by 31 December. The last official tabulation, dated 31 May, shows the Corps had 16,997 officers.

Unlike the other Services, the Marines will not be required to resort to forced attrition.

In the enlisted category, Headquarters said, the necessary reduction will be "primarily" by normal attrition and by lowering recruit input for the next six months.

At present, there are 180,372 enlisted men on active duty. Headquarters plans to cut this figure back to 172,900 by the end of December.

To correct misapprehensions among some Marines concerning the manpower cut, Headquarters issued an explanation emphasizing:

- No early release program is planned in Fiscal Year 1958 for Reserve officers on active duty;

- No curtailment in the planned rate of officer procurement is anticipated during the FY; and,

- No change is presently envisioned in existing Marine Corps policy with respect to temporary officers.

At the same time, Headquarters emphasized that personnel strength plans extend only until the end of the calendar year.

2d Lt. Bradford Wins Marine Tennis Crown

2d Lt. Thomas A. Bradford, jr., is the new All-Marine Tennis Champion.

He set down last year's champ, 1st Lt. William Demas, of Camp Pendleton, Calif., in straight sets, 7-5, 6-3 and 6-2, at the competition concluded at MCB Quantico, Va., last week.

The Quantico-based champ, who was seeded third at the outset of the matches, joined with his Quantico teammate, 2d Lt. Bruce Gustafson, to win the open doubles matches.

Lieutenant Bradford's feat of winning the All-Marine singles title and being part of the championship doubles team was duplicated by Col. Charles DeHorty, of Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, who won the Senior Singles title and teamed with Maj. Jack Smith, of Supply Center, Barstow, Calif., to take the All-Marine Senior Round Robin doubles crown.

Pendleton SCOUT Wins Journalism Award

The Camp Pendleton SCOUT, weekly newspaper of MCB Camp Pendleton, Calif., has won its third Marine Corps Journalism Award.

The Scout is edited by M/Sgt. Eddie Green.

The award, presented each year to the outstanding Marine Corps post and station newspaper, was won by the SCOUT in 1953 and 1954. The Camp Lejeune GLOBE won the honor in 1955 and 1956.

New Thunderbirds Fly
At Pease Dedication

The Thunderbirds, the Air Force's famed team of precision jet flyers, has undergone almost a complete turnover of personnel during the last year.

Slated to appear at the dedication of Pease AFB, Portsmouth, N. H., 7 September, the new Thunderbirds include: Capt. J. M. Bartley, flying left wing; Douglas D. Brenner, right wing; William H. Scott, jr., narrator; Samuel R. Johnson, solo pilot; Robert H. McIntosh, spare pilot; and Maj. J. A. Robinson, leader.

The only "old" member of the group is 1st Lt. W. R. Pogue, slot man. He flew with the Thunderbirds at the formal opening of the Portsmouth base in June 1956.

The base is being named for Capt. Harl Pease, jr., of Plymouth, N. H., who lost his life during an attack on an enemy held airdrome at Rabaul, New Britain in 1942.

Col. Eads Will Direct
AF Family Housing

Col. Edwin M. Eads, Air Force Installations Representative, for the South Pacific Region, has been reassigned to Washington, D. C. where he will be in charge of the design and construction of Family Housing for the Air Force.

With offices in San Francisco, Colonel Eads has monitored all new Air Force design and construction work for California, Arizona, Nevada and Utah, and until recently the Islands of Hawaii, Wake, Midway, Guam and Kwajalein.

Colonel Eads came to San Francisco Post from Paris, France, where he was the Senior Air Force Construction Representative for the Air Force in Europe.

While residing in San Francisco Colonel Eads rose to the position of President of the San Francisco Post, Society of American Military Engineers, in which he was recently honored for his contribution to that organization.

The highlight of his engineering career came just recently when he was awarded the Newman Medal for 1956. This medal is awarded annually by The Society of American Military Engineers to a U. S. Air Force military or civilian engineer in recognition of the most outstanding achievement during the year in design, construction, administration, research and development connected with military engineering.

Colonel Eads is married to the former Billie Curran of Ft. Worth, Tex. They have two daughters, Lynn age 17 and Sara age 13.

Brig. Gen. Wallace New CO At Sheppard

Maj. Gen. John W. Persons has taken up duties as Commander of the Fourteenth "Flying Tiger" Air Force, Robins AFB, Ga. He replaces Maj. Gen. George G. Finch, who retired 31 July.

General Persons will supervise and administer the training of Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard in 12 southern states, and Puerto Rico. The Fourteenth's area includes 40,000 Air Reservists and Guardsmen now in training.

General Persons had been serving as Commander of the 3510th Combat Crew Training Wing at Randolph AFB, Tex. Brig. Gen. James H. Wallace is the new commander of Sheppard AFB, Tex., succeeding Maj. Gen. Edward H. White, USAF-Ret.

General Wallace's last assignment was as Vice-Commander of the AFROTC at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

Brig. Gen. Kurt M. Landon, Director of Materiel for Pacific Air Force, will become Commander of both the Pacific Air Forces Base Command and the Hawaiian Air Defense Division.

Brig. Gen. Harry C. Porter is the new Pacific Air Force's Assistant CofS for Materiel. He was formerly Junior U.S. Resident Member and CofS for the U.S. Military Armistice Commission in Korea.

Brig. Gen. William A. Matheny has been reassigned from Snelling AF Station in St. Paul, Minn., to become CofS for Allied Air Forces in Northern Europe. He will report to his new assignment in October.

Brig. Gen. Wayne O. Kester, assigned to the Surgeon General's Office, Washington, D.C., will retire 31 August.

CRITICIZE USAF ACADEMY COST

The mounting cost of the new U. S. Air Force Academy received further criticism this week as the Senate Armed Services Committee disapproved certain additional construction at the school.

The Committee said it believes "the originally authorized $126 million should, and would, have provided adequate funds for the entire facility had the installation been properly planned and programmed from the start."

The criticism followed a similar blast levelled at the Air Force by the House Appropriations Committee (The Journal, 10 August).

However, the Senate reduced new construction authority for the Academy from $21.3 million to $9.4 million, whereas the House granted funds of approximately $20.8 million.

Authority provided by the Senate will permit construction of the Academy hospital and chapel and the second increment of the airmen's dormitories, the service club, the nurses quarters, the planetarium and essential utilities.

Authority for an airfield complex at the Academy was eliminated.

The Senate Armed Services Committee said it was reluctant to recommend any new authorization at this time but did so because it wanted to insure that the Academy will open on schedule.

A Rough Road. The new leadership of the Department of Defense has its program mapped out for it before it takes office. That program is spelled C-U-T.

The vital problem, therefore, facing the incoming Secretary, Mr. Neil H. McElroy, and the new Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Nathan F. Twining, is to keep this program from snowballing in such a way as to lead to a complete collapse of the Defense organization this nation had to build to face up to the Communist menace. Certainly the cost of our unpreparedness for the aggression in Korea, in lives and money, is not too far back in the past to serve as a lesson today.

Mr. McElroy, although totally inexperienced in military affairs, has, like his predecessor, a brilliant record of energetic and aggressive leadership in big business. Furthermore, he is in a position to profit by the lessons learned by Mr. Charles E. Wilson, whose four years in office have taught him a great deal about the differences between being president of a large corporation accountable to one board of directors and being a high public official accountable to the President, the Congress, the people, the important forces he administers, as well as to the judgment of history. Profiting by Mr. Wilson's experience and calling upon his own demonstrated executive ability, Mr. McElroy holds promise of being able to keep the economy movement under control and the skids out from under the Armed Services.

The reductions in military forces already announced by the Department will be followed by others. In fact, it is understood that further steps down the strength scale already have been decided upon and will be bequeathed by Secretary Wilson to his successor, who will make the announcements and issue the orders after he takes office.

The first reduction in force level for all Services has been made public. This brings the total personnel strength down 100,000 from its 2,800,000 level. As forecast in last week's JOURNAL this may be expected to drop another 200,000 to bring the total strength to 2,500,000. The Air Force's 137 wing program has been scuttled in favor of one for 128 wings and there are indications that this level is buckling. Definite Navy losses include the withdrawal of 60 ships from the fighting fleet. The absorption of the 24th Infantry Division by the 1st Cavalry Division cuts back the Army strength to 17 divisions. The Marine Corps is the only Service to have a legislative floor under its strength, but that minimum is expressed as three divisions and three air wings, which means those organizations can be skeletonized and still stay within the law.

The new Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Twining, has the happy advantage over the Secretary of having lived in intimate contact and at the highest level with the development of all of the forces over recent years. As a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, he knows intimately what each Service is seeking and how each aims to fit itself into the over-all defense picture. As military adviser to the President the task falls to him to keep the Commander in Chief aware of dangers to the defense structure and to warn him when he feels economy is overstepping the bounds of security.

The Services have a warm feeling for Mr. Wilson and regret his return to private life. His strong and often outspoken leadership earned their admiration, even though they frequently did not agree with his actions, such as his complete reversal on the Cordier plan. (In this instance, however, there is some talk that once out of office, Mr. Wilson will revert to his original position and again endorse the career incentive pay plan).

To their new leaders, the Services look for the strong support and sympathetic understanding necessary to preserve their efficiency and effectiveness against the forces now at work.

End to "Credit Card" Housing. After many years of costly experimentation with Wherry and Capehart housing schemes, it now looks as if Congress will return to the time-tested pre-war system of Government built and maintained housing for Service personnel and their families. The Senate has approved a measure killing the Capehart program, which in turn succeeded the more expensive and less satisfactory Wherry plan. (See story on page 21.)

Both earlier plans sought to disguise and delay costs by leaving the initial outlay to private builders. The Wherry plan provided for Service families renting the housing, which usually resulted in their paying more than their rental allowances, and always wound up with the government paying exorbitant rates for final possession. The Capehart program provided for Service occupancy by forfeiture of rental allowances, which in turn went toward payment by the Government toward eventual ownership. The Senate Committee estimated that Capehart houses cost the government about $3,700 more than if the government had built them originally. The Wherry houses cost the government even much more than that.

If the House agrees, and this is likely, housing hereafter will be built by the Government. The disadvantage is that this requires the initial outlay of cash through appropriations—something that Congress seems very reluctant to do these days.

QUOTES FROM THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago (16 Aug. 1947)—Events of the week show continued advance toward solidification of the world into separate Blocs under the leadership of the United States and Russia. The design of these two powers in the conferences and negotiations they have accelerated in their respective spheres, is to strengthen their own positions and weaken that of the adversary. Accurately estimating the state of the world, Secretary General Trygve Lie of the UN, while holding that war is not a present danger, tactfully reported to the General Assembly that to date it has proved impossible to overcome "a basic political situation" that has paralyzed any effective decision or action.

50 Years Ago (17 Aug. 1907)—One of the strongest arguments in support of the German system of compulsory military training is that it tends to improve the national physique and is therefore a contributor to the economic growth and welfare of the empire. The habits and conduct and the moral and physical condition of a youth who enters the Army are all carefully safeguarded during his term of service, with the result that when he returns to civilian life he is vigorous in body, methodical in demeanor and has a sense of respect for authority which greatly increases his usefulness to himself and his country.

90 Years Ago (17 Aug. 1867)—The President's wrath, which had been so long nursed against General Sheridan, seems to have been suddenly deflected, and has now fallen on Stanton. But a few weeks ago, Sheridan was on the brink of removal, and Stanton seemed tolerably firm-seated; but wise friends warned Mr. Johnson not to attempt to raid on the hero of the Shenandoah, and, as if to console himself for his chagrin, and determining to remove somebody, the Chief Magistrate seems to have alighted upon Mr. Stanton.

Blow to Retired

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The recent opinion by the Comptroller General opposing the inclusion of retired people in the proposed selective pay increase for active duty personnel is hardly worthy of that high office. His decision was obviously weighted by considerations other than those set forth. If that is an example of how he earns his princely salary, we wonder how his position can be justified.

Retired people's standard of living is drastically reduced immediately upon retirement, except, of course, Generals and Admirals. Why should we, in the lower ranks, drop from a, we'll say, fairly comfortable income while in active service to a mere existence after retirement? In order to sustain life we are forced to seek employment in a market where there is no demand for middle aged men.

Some time ago I received a letter from the Commanding General of the district in which I live, asking me, as a retired person, to assist in selling the Services to our young men. How can I honestly sell the Services? All seem to have the same thought in mind: Security and freedom from want after retirement. I am pointed to as the old Soldier who retired and then went to work as a night watchman, with two nights off each month.

No, the boys are not buying any. "We would have to be sure," they say, "that after serving our time we could really retire and not be forced to take some menial job that no one else wants."

RETIRED

Uniform Requirements

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The item on your front page, 10 Aug. issue regarding uniform dates is interesting and will help many officers.

The exemption dates do not go far enough: i.e. There are several hundred officers like myself, who will retire in June-July-August of 1958, before the 1958 winter season.

There is no more reason for us to buy greens for winter 1957 wear than those exempted because they'll be out prior to the 1958 summer uniform season.

May I solicit your editorial support to have DoFA extend this period to exempt all officers who will leave active service prior to fall of 1958, rather than summer? Only a few serve where the winter uniform is a year round requirement.

Lt. COL.

Plight of the Retired

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I have just finished reading the letter entitled "Faith Breaking," by Colonel Hunker. I cannot help but agree with him, and add my voice to his sentiments.

This letter shows just the position we who are retired find ourselves in. It is especially applicable to those of us who are retired for physical disability; are under constant hospital treatment; are supporting teen-age children; and are not able to do "odd jobs," or otherwise supplement our retirement incomes.

Temporarily, I am fortunate enough to have a small outside income to help me get by, so this letter is not entirely selfish; but, I am thinking of the many who are not so fortunate, and also wonder how I am going to get by, when outside help ends. That day is not too far away.

I am 58 years old, and was retired in 1954 with 60% permanent disability, after a total of 23 years of service. Even if I were in good physical health, my age would be a handicap in earning an adequate salary to support my family, especially in view of the fact that I could not go out and pick up my work after being away from it for so many years. The methods have changed so much in that time that I am a complete stranger to my former work today. I am sure this situation is applicable to a vast number of retired personnel.

I am a veteran of WWI, WWII and Korea, so feel that I have not entirely shirked my patriotic duties. Also, I have a son flying F-100 Super Sabres for the Air Force, presently in Japan.

Air Force Scores Vital Skill Gains As "Soft Core" NCO's Retrain At Chanute AFB

BY BRIG. GEN. ANDREW J. KINNEY, USAF,
Commander, 3345th Technical Training Wing, Chanute AFB, Ill.

THE Retraining Program for NCO's with "soft core" AFSC's (Air Force Specialty Codes) is hitting an all time high in enthusiastic reception at this midwest technical training center of the Technical Training Air Force.

In January 1957, Headquarters United States Air Force announced that non-commissioned officers who were surplus in their Career Field could be trained into more critical technical specialties by formal training in basic technical courses. Since announcement of this program, approximately 4,000 airmen with "soft core" AFSC's have volunteered and have been accepted for retraining into critical technical specialties that are needed in our Air Force of today. Class reporting dates, some extending into December 1957, have been issued for practically all of the nearly 4,000 applications that have been accepted.

By 23 July 1957, approximately 250 non-coms had been entered into technical courses at Chanute Air Force Base, Illinois. Each of these individuals had been entered in one of eleven courses that train toward a specialty listed as "scarce" or "needed" in Air Force Regulations.

THE ACADEMIC success of the students enrolled in this retraining program is quite impressive. Those who feared an unfavorable comparison of academic performance by the old timers in the retraining program, when compared with that of the young student just out of high school, have been pleasantly surprised. As a group, those retrainees who have graduated had final course grades in the top 40% of their classes. Better than one-third of the graduate retrainees had final course grades in the top 15%.

The retraining program is designed to provide an influx of career non-commissioned officers into highly technical career fields, thus permitting better NCO utilization and improved career prospects for airmen. Students who have been enrolled in technical courses under this program are highly motivated career airmen. They have volunteered for this type of training with the intent of improving their own technical knowledge. They receive every possible consideration while in training.

THE FOLLOWING ARE EXAMPLES of the special considerations given to these retraining students at Chanute Air Force Base:

a. They are given a priority for entry into the technical course upon arrival at Chanute.

b. They are normally entered as a separate instructional group with an especially well-qualified instructor assigned.

c. They are housed separately from basic airman students. Insofar as facilities permit, they are housed in the same type of quarters as those assigned to instructors with usually two students to a room.

d. They are allowed to advance through the technical course on a proficiency basis.

e. Retrainee students are given all possible individual attention.

f. They are not required to participate in the Basic Military Training Program, or perform any administrative duties whatsoever.

g. They are met on arrival at Chanute by a non-commissioned officer who undertakes to acquaint the newcomer with the Air Base.

h. They are extended the privileges of the NCO Club and, in all ways, treated in a manner appropriate to their rank as a Non-commissioned Officer.

Recently, Headquarters USAF announced an extension of the retraining program as part of continuing efforts to improve the manning of technical positions through voluntary retraining.

THIS EXTENSION of the program will permit career-minded Staff Sergeants and Airmen First Class in overage AFSC's to apply for retraining through formal basic schools. The training which is available for these retrainees will lead into highly technical skills which are critically short. Normally, only Staff Sergeants or Airmen First Class in the ZI, serving a second or subsequent enlistment, may apply for this retraining. However, airmen on a first enlistment may apply if they reenlist. (Additional details on the extended technical retraining program are contained in Air Staff message AFPMP 192083, which was transmitted to all commands on 24 June 1957.)

The formal technical courses at Chanute Air Force Base, Illinois, that have become the most popular among the volunteer retrainees are:

a. Aircraft Mechanic, Jet Fighter. This course trains individuals for jobs on the F-94C and F-104 aircraft.

b. Aircraft Mechanic, Jet Bomber (over two engines). This course trains individuals for jobs on the B-52 and KC-135 aircraft.

c. Jet Engine Mechanic. This course trains individuals for jobs on one of the following jet engines: J-47, J-48, J-57, J-73 or J-79.

d. Reciprocating Engine Mechanic. This course trains individuals for jobs on the R-4360 or R-3350 engine.

e. Production Control. This course trains individuals for production scheduling and material estimating jobs.

Additional details on the courses listed above may be found in the USAF Training Prospectus.

THERE ARE MANY OTHER COURSES conducted at Chanute Air Force Base and other bases of the Technical Training Air Force that train airmen for highly technical and needed skills. If an airman has plans for training out of a "soft core" AFSC, a little time spent studying Air Force Regulations 35-81 and the course data contained in the USAF Training Prospectus will help in making wise choices. Airmen who are selected for retraining will be joining a highly motivated and capable group of NCO's whose importance and prestige in the USAF will be further enhanced as a result of the new skills acquired.

Carlisle Barracks, Home of U. S. Army War College, Marks 200th Anniversary

BY COL. N. M. MARTIN, USA
Chairman, U. S. Army War College
Historical Committee

A SHORT six years after the Borough of Carlisle was established, one of the nation's oldest military posts, still in use by the United States Army, was founded by Col. John Stanwix of the British Army one mile east of the Public Square. Carlisle Barracks, established on 30 May, 1757, has figured prominently in the educational system of the Army since Col. Henry Bouquet, a Swiss soldier of fortune, arrived here in May of 1758 to train British and Provincial troops for Indian warfare.

In view of its long history as a training center, it is most appropriate that today Carlisle Barracks is the home of the U. S. Army War College, the Army's senior educational institution. It is also interesting to note that the Barracks was the site of what is believed to be the United States Army's first formal school, established under Capt. Isaac Coren in 1777 to train Artillerists.

Originally known simply as "the camp near Carlisle," the post was named "Washingtonburg" during the Revolutionary War, and was the only military post ever to be named for General George Washington. In later years, the post gained its present-day name.

CARLISLE'S EARLY SETTLERS became the victims of many Indian raids in the mid-eighteenth century. Col. Stanwix and his forces had intended to march on to Ohio Valley positions, but while in Carlisle he received word of an expected attack by the French and Indians and consequently remained to establish defenses for the budding community.

In May 1758 a large depot was ordered built at Carlisle, and with the erection of storehouses and barracks, the first actual buildings appeared in Stanwix's camp. At this time, the post was the most secure British position west of the Susquehanna and served as a supply base and jumping-off point for expeditions to the west.

The post became an armory for the manufacture of muskets and ammunition in 1769 and, garrisoned by troops of the Colonial Army after the Revolutionary War, continued for many years to function as supply depot for the forces further west. During the Revolutionary War the installation was designated as Quartermaster Supply Headquarters for the Western Department. The necessities of war led to further expansion of activities at Carlisle and, with the availability of many skilled armorers in the area, supplies of iron nearby, plus its strategic location, the post was the logical site for such an arsenal.

HERE THE "PUBLIC WORKS" was founded in 1777 where cannon, shot, harness, gun carriages, barrels and nails were manufactured, and a musket repair shop was operative. Large quantities of powder were stored in the magazine, and facilities at nearby Boiling Springs, Mount Holly and Pine Grove Furnace supplied cannon balls and shells, as well as cannon castings.

The main magazine, erected in 1777, still stands. It is the oldest building on the post and is now known as the "Hessian Guardhouse Museum." So named because it is thought the building was constructed, at least in part, by Hessian prisoners captured at Trenton and sent by Washington to the post for detention. The Museum is now open to the public on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons from 1:00-5:00 throughout the year.

From 1777-1781 the Deputy Quartermaster General, Col. John Davis, had his headquarters here while the Public Works operated at full capacity. In 1781 business started downhill and the post was quiet until 1791 when Carlisle became a Recruiting and Ordnance Center.

Of particular interest to our civilian neighbors, is the fact that a part of Dickinson College was once located at the Barracks. Dr. Charles Nisbet, Dickinson's first Principal, established his residence in the community, shortly after his arrival from England and remained at the Barracks from July 1785 until October 1793. The "occupation" of the post by the College was based on an assumption by Dr. Benjamin Rush that the grounds of the military establishment, then virtually deserted by the military, would be ceded to Dickinson College by the government. During this period the facilities of the Barracks were also used by the College for other activities, including, according to some historians, classroom work.

WITH THE CREATION of a permanent standing Army in 1792, military activities again expanded and Dr. Nisbet was forced to evacuate Dickinson College activities from the Post. With the outbreak of trouble in Western Pennsylvania over the new whiskey taxes, the President, General George Washington, personally assembled at Carlisle the largest force ever under his command, about fourteen thousand men, to quell the so called "Whiskey Rebellion" of 1794. Carlisle Barracks, by this time, once again a thriving training center and supply point, served as the base for this operation, which incidentally succeeded without bloodshed.

At the turn of the 19th Century, the post was considered as a site for the U. S. Military Academy and was highly favored by Gen. Washington. However, after eight years of Congressional debate, the proponents of the West Point, New York, site won the battle.

In 1802 the government finally purchased the Carlisle military reservation from the heirs of William Penn. The purchase price was $664.20 and included "... 27 acres and 108 perches, exclusive of the old mill lane."

A SEVERE FIRE destroyed many of the facilities on the post in 1806 and caused the evacuation of all troops. But by 1812 Carlisle Barracks was a busy recruiting and training center again, supplying trained replacements for the war with the British. This activity lasted until 1814, when hostilities ceased, and then rapidly dwindled to a caretaker status in which it remained with short exceptions until 1838. In that year, the School of Cavalry Practice, forerunner of the Armor School, was established at Carlisle Barracks and continued until 1861. Hundreds of well-trained cavalrymen (both Union and Confederate as it turned out) were schooled here. During the early years of the Civil War several "false alarms" of raids by the Confederates on the community occurred, but in June 1863 the 17th Virginia Cavalry arrived in the city. The Confederate troops set up a headquarters on 29 June. On 1 July, Confederate General J. E. B. Stuart marched on Carlisle, fired on the city and burned the Barracks.

1st Lt. Richard H. Pratt established the Carlisle Indian Industrial School here in 1879. In the 39 years of its existence, the School grew rapidly, and in addition to academic studies, the Indians were taught the mechanical arts, farming, cooking, sewing, and many other practical courses. It was at the School that Glenn S. "Pop" Warner fostered some of the best athletic teams in the nation. While training here Jim Thorpe reached his peak in football and track achievements; later to be named as the "Greatest Athlete of the Half Century" (1900-1950). The fabulous Philadelphia baseball pitcher, Chief Bender, "fleet footed" Tewanima and countless other famed Indian athletes also began their careers at the Carlisle Indian School.

On 1 Sept., 1918 the School was discontinued, and General Hospital #31 took over the original part of the reservation, remaining here until the close of World War I. The Army Medical Field Service School was established at the post in 1920 and remained until 1946, when it was moved to Fort Sam Houston, Tex. During this 25 year period, over 30,000 officers and enlisted men were educated at Carlisle Barracks.

In February of 1946 a game of "musical chairs" began with the arrival of the Army Information School (which later became the Armed Forces Information School) and the Chaplain School, both to be displaced later to Fort Slocum, N. Y. In April 1946 the School For Government of Occupied Areas was established.

CONGRESSIONAL PROTESTS will hit the Pentagon just as soon as the Services make known the names of Reserve officers who must be released involuntarily to meet new manpower ceilings. Some will have between 14 and 18 years' service, WWII and Korea included.

THE ARMY IS DISPLEASED that it must release some Reserve officers with more than 20 years' service, and therefore eligible for retirement, who had been told only recently that they would be kept on active duty. AGGRAVATING THE SITUATION is the need to release some officers with 60 days' notice; in the past, the Army has tried to give officers four months.

THE OTHER SERVICES ARE HOPEFUL the Army will keep draft calls at least at a 7,000 monthly level, higher if possible. Army draft calls have a direct bearing on enlistments in the Armed Forces. Many in the Army would like to see draft calls maintained at about 10,000 per month. This would permit release from active duty of thousands of men in "no aptitude" and "low aptitude" categories and their replacement by better quality personnel.

ONE INDICATION THAT FURTHER CUTS in military manpower are being discussed comes in a Marine Corps report (Page 6) that no forced attrition will be necessary this year. The Marine Corps announcement "emphasized that personnel strength plans extend only until the end of the calendar year."

BUDGET PRESSURES are expected to result in a liberalized early-out program in all the Services during the pre-Christmas period.

STRONGER DIRECTIVES are coming from DoD on the matter of using up leave time. The Pentagon wants to cut down, as much as possible, on separation costs.

GRADE STRUCTURE PROBLEMS are foreseen in the Services. Heaviest enlisted cuts, of course, are in the lower ranks. This obviously raises the ratio of NCO's. Unless the Budget Bureau goes along with the Pentagon contention that a liberalized grade structure is essential, top rank enlisted promotions will suffer drastically.

SCORES OF OFFICERS being separated from active duty will seek enlisted billets to complete retirement requirements. This will also aggravate NCO promotion plans.

THE GYROSCOPE PROGRAM, which sees Army units up to division level rotated to and from the U. S., faces new problems as a result of manpower cuts. A major difficulty will be the filling of replacement packets. In the past, packet quotas could be met largely by draftees. This won't be the case any more. AS A RESULT, the Pentagon will be forced to levy on the ZI commands for the packets.

ARMY CHIEFS ARE SQUAWKING—(privately) for obvious reasons—new budget limitations (page one) penalize what they call "good management." The Army, alone of the Services, was spending less money than had been estimated in the Administration's original FY '58 budget. So what happens? The other Services get an O.K. from SecDef Wilson to exceed the previous estimates; the Army is told it must cut $220 million.

THERE'S NO QUESTION the Army feels it has taken heavy lumps from SecDef Wilson. It was a wide open Pentagon secret that Mr. Wilson and his first Deputy, Mr. Roger Keyes, gave the Army—particularly former CofS Ridgway—what was described as "rough treatment."

GENERAL TAYLOR and Secretary Brucker have enjoyed much more consideration in their top briefings than did their predecessors, but the Army generally feels that they have been the low Service on the Pentagon totem pole.

THE ARMY HOPES with the arrival of Secretary-designate McElroy that the situation will change, but in the face of the current economy drive, most Army people are conceding that further cutbacks will come.

JCS CHAIRMEN have had a longer tenure of office than have the Secretaries of Defense, even though the former are appointed for only two years while a cabinet member would normally be for four years. General Twining will be only the third JCS Chairman, his two predecessors, General Bradley and Admiral Radford, having each served four years through reappointments. Mr. McElroy, on the other hand, will be the SIXTH SECRETARY OF DEFENSE. Mr. Forrestal served only from 1947 to '49; Louis A. Johnson filled in until '50; General Marshall to '51; and Robert A. Lovett to '53. Mr. Wilson is the first to fill out a full four years.

HUNDREDS OF PRIVATELY-BUILT Wherry Housing units being bought by the Government must be designated "substandard" and continued on a lease-rental basis while repairs are made before the units can be designated as public quarters. There's no question the Government has spent many millions of dollars for Wherry units that could have been saved had the quarters been undertaken as public works projects with initial outlays by the Treasury.

AN ALERT PUBINFO OFFICER at Portsmouth AFB, N. H.—his name is Capt. Roland V. Davis—has given newsmen all pertinent details on the dedication of that SAC facility as Pease AFB on 7 Sept. The press advisory says there is a 6% chance of rain and .3% chance of thunderstorms. A high of 74 is forecast, a low of 50 degrees.

AIR FORCE COMBAT LEADERS are worried that cuts in M&O funds will jeopardize crew training, particularly in the use of such new weapons as the Bell GAM-63 air-to-surface "Rascal" missile. After October, all launchings will be made by SAC B-47 crews, taking over from Bell Aircraft Corp., people who have been conducting flight tests at Holloman Air Development Center, N. M. SIMULATORS ALSO WILL BE USED extensively, but SAC commanders say it's essential that crews be given adequate flying hours to develop and maintain proficiency.

AIR MARSHAL C. R. SLEMON, who will be Deputy Cinc of the joint U. S.-Canadian Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs under General Earle Partridge, USAF, won his pilot's wings in 1924—the same year the Royal Canadian Air Force was established. He is the only RCAF "original" on active duty. Air Marshal Slemon, who is succeeded by Air Marshal Hugh L. Campbell, has been Chief of the RCAF Air Staff since 1953.

THERE WERE MORE IMPORTANT CUTS in military spending reported this week, but it should not go unrecorded that indoor volley ball has been tapped to replace touch football at Castle AFB, Calif. One reason: it costs $27 per night to play football, only $6 for volleyball.

Compensation And Pension Pay Rises To $3 Billion In Fiscal Year '58

COMPENSATION and pension payments made by the Veterans Administration have risen from about $234 million in 1919 to an estimated $3 billion in fiscal '58.

Recent figures compiled by the V.A. show that compensation payments will be made to approximately two million veterans and to the dependents of about 395,000 deceased veterans in the new fiscal year.

Pension payments in fiscal '58 will go to 762,000 veterans and to the dependents of 488,000 deceased veterans.

The group includes one survivor of the yellow fever experiments, 112 survivors of the Indian wars and 48,292 survivors of the Spanish-American War.

Here is a breakdown which shows the number of veterans in each category who will receive either compensation or pension from the V.A. during fiscal '58, and the number of deceased veterans whose survivors will receive VA checks:

Living Veterans

APPROVE $10,000 FOR RETIRED RESERVISTS

The Comptroller General has ruled that all retired Reserve officers of the Armed Forces are free to earn up to $10,000 in combined retired pay and income from Government jobs.

The decision, which grew out of the Tanner case ruling by the U. S. Court of Claims, establishes a precedent for retroactive and prospective payments of military retired pay (in addition to civilian compensation) in all cases where the Reservist concerned is otherwise entitled and has been, or may be, granted retired pay under any statutory provision of law.

In an earlier ruling (2 March 1956), the Comptroller General decided that the precedent would be extended temporarily only to those Reservists retired under Title III, pending the outcome of other dual compensation cases pending in the courts.

These cases have now been decided in favor of the Reserve officers concerned and the Comptroller General has modified his earlier ruling "accordingly."

Keeping a fatal rendezvous in 4-D

Any hunter who's fired at a fast-flying duck knows you have to figure time—the 4th dimension—if you want the shot to meet the duck in flight . . .

Now substitute an airplane taking full evasive action at 40,000 feet or more, and conventional ways of aiming become obsolete. Yet this problem is relatively simple, as was dramatically proved at the first tests of the Nike missile, jointly developed by Bell Telephone laboratories and Douglas.

Even more complex than ground-to-air marksmanship is air-to-air gunnery, where opposing planes top 1000 mph, and fire missiles that move twice that fast. It's an entirely new science, based on principles first expounded by a Douglas scientist, and proved in repeated successful tests—even against unseen targets.

Depend on DOUGLAS

Aviation

Dramatic moment in aviation history, a Douglas-built Nike-Ajax bores in on a drone bomber.

A split second later finds the bomber in flames, as Nike-Ajax scores a direct hit.

Here is Nike-Hercules, soon to take over defense of U. S. cities from the earlier Nike-Ajax. Tripling the range of its predecessor, Nike-Hercules can be armed with a nuclear warhead, to knock out entire fleets with a single blast.

Douglas engineers load the rocket pod of an F4D Skyray. Fire control problems at supersonic speed, naturally much greater than encountered at stable ground emplacements, are solved on principles developed by a Douglas engineer. Consistent hits can be scored by planes approaching one another at close to a mile per second, and even when unseen.

Marine Corps Board Selects 116 Majors For Silver Oak Leaves; 76 Passed Over

A Marine Corps selection board has picked 116 majors—four less than named by the Fiscal '57 board—for promotion to lieutenant colonel.

The list includes 105 Unrestricted, seven Supply Duty and four Limited Duty officers. The board, headed by Maj. Gen. Robert B. Luckey, Commanding General, Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C., considered majors with dates of rank of 1 June 1951, and earlier.

The 171-man unrestricted zone extended from Maj. Richard A. Brenneman, Lineal No. 251, through Maj. Mauro J. Padalino, Lineal No. 430, in the Combined Lineal List of 1 Jan. 1957. Both the senior and anchor men in the zone were selected.

At the same time, the board considered a separate zone of nine Limited Duty officers as reported in the 6 July issue of THE JOURNAL. Four of the nine were chosen.

Of the total number named for advancement, 95 unrestricted officers were picked from within the zone and 17 from above the zone. There were no selections from below the zone.

ANALYSIS OF THE LINEAL LIST shows that 76 unrestricted officers were passed over for the first time—a percentage of 44.5.

Included in the selections are 36 pilots from within the zone and one from above the zone. There were 59 Naval Aviators in the zone. The selection ratio is a little better than 61 per cent.

The in-zone selection rate for non-pilots, however, is slightly less than 55 per cent.

The lone pilot to be chosen from above the zone is Maj. Thomas B. Wood.

No SDO's were picked from above the zone; seven of 10 were named from within the zone.

THE BOARD CONSIDERED the records of 11 active duty Reservists in the zone. Only one was selected. He is Maj. Charles J. McCaffrey.

All categories of officers have dates of rank of 1 Jan. 1951, with the exception of the two top officers picked from above the zone. The board reached up 207 lineal positions to name Maj. Albert M. Roebuck who has held his present rank since 1 July 1949, and 192 slots for Maj. Paul C. Trammel whose rank dates from 8 Dec. 1950.

Approximately two-thirds of the total number picked were first commissioned late in 1942 with the remaining one-third having initial commissioning dates in the first few months of 1943.

More than 80 lieutenant colonel-selectees have served as enlisted Marines. Nearly 40 have had previous service in the Navy, 10 in the National Guard or a State Militia, and two in the Army.

Several officers had experience in more than one Service before becoming Marines. Maj. Robert E. McClean, for example, served in the Navy and National Guard before enlisting in the Marine Corps.

AT PRESENT, there are only a handful of openings for the selectees, but the top 50 officers on the list can expect fairly swift promotions as additional vacancies are created. Their commanding officers have been ordered to see the first 50 on the list take physical examinations for promotion at the earliest possible date. The next 30 officers will take physicals in January and the remainder in April.

Here's a lineal list of the selectees (names of LDO's are preceded by an asterisk):

MATHER ENGINEER GRADS

The 3535th Navigator Training Wing has graduated nine officers from its staff Aircraft Performance Engineer Course.

The 22-week course is designed to provide the Air Force with staff performance engineers qualified to do staff planning duties in jet-equipped flying organizations.

Graduates are: Capt. J. W. Caldwell, John Gallagher, Jr., Clifford O. Haskins, Joseph C. Hilliard, Merrill J. Schroeder, Andrew J. Stough, III, William G. Swartz, Roy C. Wilkinson; and 1st Lt. Lyle G. Thomas.

55 COMPLETE COURSE

Graduating from the Air Force advanced navigator-reconnaissance-bombardment course at Mather AFB, Calif., late in July were 55 student officers of Class 57-L-RB.

During the six months program the officer-students received academic and flight instruction in new bombing-navigation systems. The majority of the graduates will be assigned to SAC units.

Graduates are: Captains George F. Gibson and Wesley W. Witten.

First Lieutenants: George C. Cooper, David Hawkins, William C. Hess, Grady L. McCoy, Jr., William A. Reese, 3d, John E. Van Heest and Edward D. Young.

COMPLETE UPGRADE TRAINING

Twenty-three Air Force officers were graduated from the primary-basic navigator upgrading course at Mather AFB.

The majority of graduates of the 10-month course are officers holding only single aeronautical ratings—such as WW II bombardiers or navigators. Through instruction in the primary-basic program they were upgraded in the fundamentals of new bombing-navigation equipment and techniques. All of the graduates will enter advanced training.

The graduation roster includes:

Maj. Arthur C. Eldridge; Captains Francis L. Ball, William J. Beard, Arthur W. Carlisle, Darrel D. Carpenter, Paul O. Crabtree, Arthur E. Curmode, Richard R. Esemann, Narvel C. Flexner, Leonard W. Fredlake, Edward Horst, Andrew C. Iaderosa, Charles J. King, Alton B. LaVelle, Bernard F. McGrane, Walter C. Osterman, Mario A. Piccioni, John W. Scriven, 3d, Orlando W. Severson, Charles L. Testerman, and Michael A. Yakutis; First Lieutenants Steve J. Mack and William C. Money.

HEADED FOR TAC

Graduating from the specialized tactical "postgraduate" phase of the Air Force advanced navigator-reconnaissance-bombardment course at Mather were 10 student officers of Class 57-I-RB. The eight-week specialized training featured instruction in the low-level navigation techniques and SHORAN equipment operation required for tactical operations.

It followed a six months program of academic and flight instruction in new strategic bombing-navigation systems from which the officers had graduated in May.

Officers graduating from the postgraduate phase will be assigned to TAC units in the U. S. and overseas.

Graduates are: Maj. Donald L. Kaiser; Captains Derry D. Irons, Herbert S. Kahn, Angelo J. Melito, and Lonnie C. Sitts; First Lieutenants Jared D. Casey, Thomas C. Steele, and James Thurerwacher; Second Lieutenants Clarence J. Raible and John Renaud.

Bi-Partisan Praise Given SecDef Wilson

Members of the United States Senate have abandoned partisan politics to pay tribute to retiring Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson.

Democratic Senator Richard L. Neuberger (Ore.) told his colleagues that in a town "where evasiveness, doubletalk, straddling and the quick shift often pay off" Secretary Wilson "has not hesitated to offend powerful groups politically. He has not hesitated to speak his mind to congressional committees, when those committees occasionally consisted of men who were not above bullying or browbeating a witness."

Senator Neuberger saluted Mr. Wilson "for these personal characteristics of forthrightness and candor."

Senator Charles E. Potter (R-Mich.), told the Senate Mr. Wilson "brought to the Office of the Secretary of Defense a candor which has been refreshing in an area and community where 'double talk' is commonplace." He said the Secretary's "businesslike approach" to his work "has been outstanding," and added that "few men have sacrificed so much" in the public service of their country.

Senator Dennis Chavez (D-N. M.) praised Mr. Wilson for always being "reasonable." He noted that the Secretary "has a very fine sense of humor."

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) said "Mr. Wilson's record at the Pentagon as Secretary of Defense will be looked upon for many years as that of a man who gave everything he had, courageously, intelligently, and with persistence, to serve what he thought were the best interests of the security of our country."

Mrs. Wilson also won praise from the Senators.

Senator Neuberger noted that she "was not afraid to place loyalty and love of her husband above fealty to the President" and he added that there should "be more wives like Jessie Ann Wilson in our Nation's Capitol."

Senator Neuberger referred to an incident in which Secretary Wilson charged the National Guard with harboring draft-dodgers. President Eisenhower categorized the Secretary's remarks as "unwise" and Mrs. Wilson came back with the retort that the President's statement was "uncalled for."

Both the Secretary "and his wife, Jessie, are loved by those who know them," Senator Potter said. He added that they "possess the qualities which make for an outstanding team. I know they will be sorely missed."

Nurse Career Act Goes To President

The $6.7 million Nurses Career Act has been approved by the Senate and sent to the White House for the President's signature.

The new law will mean more promotions and earlier retirement for Regular nurses and medical specialists in the Army, Navy and Air Force.

About 2,000 officers will win higher rank under the proposal during the next five years.

At present, the average nurse can expect to advance only to the grade of captain in the Army and Air Force and to lieutenant in the Navy.

The new act raises this career expectancy to major and lieutenant commander.

It also authorizes more officers to be promoted to pay grade O-6.

Under the terms of the Act, the Army will promote about 320 nurses to major and 20 to lieutenant colonel in the current fiscal year. Also, 26 to major and three to lieutenant colonel in the Medical Specialist Corps.

In the Air Force, 96 nurses will be promoted to major during the next 11 months.

The Navy will promote about 663 nurses to lieutenant commander during the current fiscal year, 25 to commander and one to captain.

Mather Needs Nurses

Mather AFB, Calif., has several positions available for staff nurse in the base hospital.

One year of hospital experience is required and $4,080 per year the pay.

Maj. Gen. T. L. Sherburne, Commander of the 101st Airborne Division and Ft. Campbell, Ky., has announced changes in key command and staff personnel.

Col. Frederick W. Nagle moves to Division and Post Headquarters as Deputy CofS, succeeding Col. Merton E. Muncon, who leaves to become PMS&T at Michigan State University.

Replacing Colonel Nagle as Commander of Special Troops will be Lt. Col. Henry S. Daugherty, presently post Provost Marshal. Colonel Daugherty's duties will be assumed by Division Provost Marshal Lt. Col. William T. McClary.

On 19 Nov., Lt. Col. William G. Thomas will become G-2, succeeding Lt. Col. Joseph R. Dean.

Colonel Dean will move to the 1st Airborne Battle Group, 506th Infantry.

COL. ROBERT H. SAFFORD has assumed command of the Division's logistics organization, Support Group. He succeeds Col. Alan M. Strock, who is leaving for Iran.

"Ridge-Runner" Truck Devised For Army QM

A new type rough-terrain fork lift truck, designed for swift handling of military supplies over rugged field conditions, has been developed for the Army Quartermaster Corps by the Clark Equipment Company, Battle Creek, Mich. The new vehicle, equipped with front and rear wheel steering, can operate through sand, mud, snow and in water up to five feet deep.

An oscillating rear axle keeps the truck level when running along uneven terrain. It has a top speed of 25 miles an hour, either forward or in reverse, and can move sideways at a 20-degree angle.

The truck body can be tilted right or left, independent of the axle, to permit pickup of loads set at an angle or to carry loads at an even level across a hillside.

Fight Brews Over Substandard Housing; Senate Provides For Inadequate BOQs

From first page—
should be provided for an indefinite period.

The latest wrangle in the housing dispute arose when the Senate Armed Services Committee incorporated the rent-cut proposal into the fiscal '58 authorization bill for military construction.

The authorization bill, with the rent-cut plan included, was approved by the Senate on 12 August. Because it differs from the House-passed measure it now must go to conference.

This means that House Committee members will be forced to meet with Senate Committee members to iron out differences in the rent-cut plan.

Last year, after the House had approved the substandard quarters legislation, with a time limit, the Senate approved similar legislation for an unlimited period.

House Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) refused to go to conference on the bill and the measure died. As a result, thousands of Service families continued to pay high rents for shoddy quarters.

Early in the current session, the House again passed the rent-cut plan, limiting it to two years, but with the understanding that if the problem is not erased during that period the Services can come back for an extension. The Committee reiterated its position that it cannot subscribe to the use of substandard quarters for military families and the sooner such quarters are demolished, the better.

In adding the plan to the military construction bill, the Senate Committee also made the rent cuts available to bachelor officers assigned to inadequate BOQ's. The number of such quarters and the additional costs involved were not immediately available at the Pentagon.

The Committee said the ultimate solution to the substandard quarters problem "is to provide adequate and sufficient public quarters." However, the Committee stated, under existing conditions "the precipitate elimination of all substandard public quarters would only aggravate the morale problem stemming from the need to house members and their dependents."

The Senate Committee report notes "There are instances where, because of the nature of their assigned duties, key personnel are required to occupy public quarters at or near their place of duty. In this situation, military requirements give the commanding officer no alternative but to assign members to on-station public quarters without regard to their adequacy."

"To eliminate all substandard quarters under such circumstances would reduce the military capabilities of the station. It should be noted here that in the case of many overseas installations, no housing is available other than that which exists on the base. Under such circumstances, the services, from a morale standpoint, consider it essential that as many members as practicable have their families with them, in spite of the inadequacy of the quarters."

If a dwelling is inadequate by reason of size alone, the House bill does not permit it to be declared substandard. The Senate proposal, on the other hand, permits exceptions to this rule.

Approximately 21,300 Army families will benefit from passage of the legislation, as will 8,625 in the Air Force, 6,362 in the Navy and Marine Corps, 130 in the Coast Guard and 100 in the Public Health Service.

What the proposal will look like when it comes out of conference is anyone's guess, but there is a chance the Senate will accept the House plan to limit the authority to two years, with a proviso that the Services can ask for an extension if the problem is still with them two years from now.

Senate Group "Uncomfortable" In Spending For NIKE As "Last Ditch" Defense Symbol

The wisdom of further expanding the Army's NIKE defense system after fiscal '58 was questioned this week by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

In approving the military construction program for the current fiscal year, the Committee reluctantly voted authority for the '58 NIKE program but said it feels "uncomfortable at the thought of spending increasing amounts for the weapons which represent but a last-ditch symbol." Approximately 40 per cent of the Army construction program this year is devoted to NIKE.

The Committee said "In view of the fact that weapons of mass destruction can be released at great distances from their potential targets, the committee came to the conclusion that the time is at hand when emphasis must be placed on weapon systems which will provide greater defense in depth."

In addition, the Senators expressed concern "over the possibility that the Department of the Army might be placing too much emphasis and devoting too much of its effort to static-defense concepts." The Committee said it feels "the Army must place first priority on the capability to engage in successful and sustained ground combat—that this mission must not be subordinated to any other."

Following a special, secret briefing on the NIKE program, the Committee said it was "impressed" but "could not help but conclude that in many areas each military service is developing weapon systems in a seeming effort to become self-efficient apparently with little regard to those in existence or being developed by other Services."

The Secretary of Defense was requested by the Committee "to take vigorous action to insure that only those systems are approved and maintained that fit in with the overall strategic doctrine." The Senators also expressed their hope that "this doctrine will be tailored to tactical and strategic requirements rather than budgetary decisions."

CHATEAUX WILL BE CONTROL POINT

The 1708-9 Ferrying Wing Detachment has begun operations at Chateaux Air Station, France, as the central control point for aircraft being ferried from the ZI to Great Britain, Europe, Africa and the Middle East.

Chateaux soon will be the first point of landing in Europe for all ferried aircraft and crews under operational control of the 1708th Ferrying Wing.

The MATS detachment is commanded by Lt. Col. Samuel C. Burgess.

VISITING DIGNITARIES at the ground breaking ceremonies held at Ft. Polk, La., for the $33,000-000 Capehart Housing project to be erected within the next months, bow their heads in prayer during the invocation. Left to right: Maj. Gen. Edward G. Farand, Ft. Polk and 1st Armored Division commander; Louisiana Governor Earl K. Long; and Miss Carlotta Prichard of Washington, D. C. The 2000-unit project was named Prichard Hills, in memory of Miss Prichard's father, the late Maj. Gen. Vernon E. Prichard, World War II commander of the 1st Armored Division.

SENATE KILLS CAPEHART HOUSING

The Senate voted this week to kill the Capehart military family housing program effective 30 June 1958.

If the House approves, beginning on 1 July next year, family housing for Service families will be constructed by the Government with funds appropriated by the Congress.

The Senate Armed Services Committee wrote the new housing provisions into the military construction bill which must now be considered by Senate-House conferees.

The Senate Committee said Capehart houses each cost about $3,700 more than appropriated-fund units, and this difference when applied to the near 200,000-unit deficit in the Armed Forces "would result in a saving of $740 million if direct appropriations were used." If the interest on appropriated funds is deducted, the Committee added, the savings would be over $1.9 billion.

The Committee voiced vigorous opposition to "credit card" budgetary procedures "which camouflage the initial costs by deleting them from current budgets only to pass them on accompanied by unnecessary 'service charges' for inevitable payment by the taxpayer." Hidden costs "simply confuse the issue, delay the reckoning, and present a false picture," the Committee said.

fense, the Committee also questioned the retention and maintenance of conventional antiaircraft artillery units in the troop structure. If further troop reductions are to be made, the Committee said "they should be made in this area."

The Committee suggested that the Defense Department "closely scrutinize the extent to which our limited military resources are allocated to air defense, including area and point missile systems and manned interceptors" and that the Department "take positive steps to eliminate ineffective weapon systems."

Navy, AF Officers Get Harmon Awards

The 1957 Harmon International Aviation Awards for outstanding skill as pilots will be awarded to an Air Force rocket pilot and two Navy balloonists.

Award winners are Lt. Col. Frank E. Everest, USAF, LCdr. Morton L. Lewis, USN, and Mr. Malcolm D. Ross, a civilian.

Established in 1926 by pioneer aviator and balloonist, the late Col. Clifford B. Harmon, the trophy awards are traditionally presented by the President in a White House ceremony.

Colonel Everest will receive the Harmon honor for his work as project officer and pilot of the Bell X-2 research plane powered with Curtiss-Wright rocket engines in which he flew more than 1,900 miles per hour.

Mr. Ross and Commander Lewis were named for their record ascent to an altitude of 76,000 feet in the "Stratolab" balloon last 8 November. The pair made their record ascent from Rapid City, S. D., in a pressurized gondola seven feet in diameter.

Commander Lewis is a balloon program officer for the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics.

This year's winners were recommended to the Harmon trustees by an advisory committee of aviation experts.

Senate Cuts Service Building Program

The Senate has approved a large-scale cutback in the fiscal '58 military construction program—more than $200 million below the House-approved authorization.

Left intact, however, is authority for the construction of 2,146 units of family housing. The Senate also approved a new section authorizing rent cuts for substandard family quarters and BOQs and added a provision which wipes out the Capehart family housing program on 30 June 1958 (see story above).

The measure now goes to conference. Meanwhile, a separate measure authorizing funds for the program still remains to be considered by the Senate.

In reporting the construction authorization bill to the floor, the Senate Armed Services Committee devoted considerable attention to the subject of continental air defense and the construction program for the United States Air Force Academy.

The bill authorizes a construction program totalling $1.4 billion, of which the Army's share is $292,428,000; the Navy and Marine Corps, $322,926,000; the Air Force, $588,059,000. The bill also provides $181,099,000 in increases to prior authorizations, $52,209,000 for family housing and $9,425,000 for the Air Force Academy.

The following chart shows how the Senate bill compares with the House-passed authorization:

	Senate Authorization	House Authorization
Army	$292,428,000	$297,714,000
Navy-USMC	$322,926,000	$391,095,000
Air Force	$588,059,000	$727,764,000
Prior Authority	$181,099,000	$186,495,000
USAF	$ 9,425,000	$ 21,341,000
Family Housing	$ 52,209,000	$ 51,348,000

FAMILY HOUSING "UNSATISFACTORY"

The manner in which the Armed Forces have been acquiring needed family housing "is a matter of concern" to the House Appropriations Committee.

"All evidence," the Committee charged this week, "would seem to indicate a lack of coordination and agreement on objectives between the Office of the Secretary of Defense and the three services."

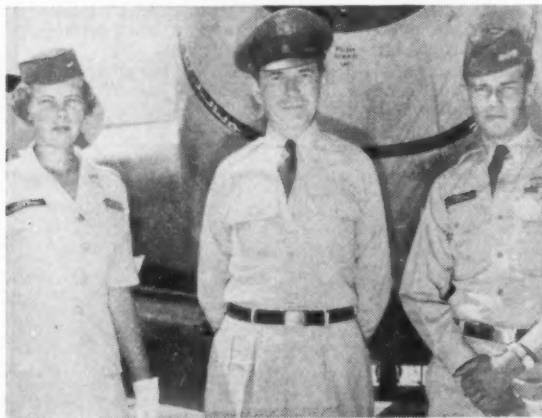

The Committee was particularly critical of the Wherry housing acquisition program which, it said, "has been completely unsatisfactory."

The Services are directed by law to purchase Wherry housing in areas where they contract to build new Capehart public quarters.

Wherry owners "have businesses to operate and are certainly entitled to know what the plans of the Government are with respect to the acquisition of these projects," the Committee declared. In some instances, the Committee said, Capehart housing has been constructed prior to the acquisition of the Wherry projects serving the same location.

The Committee "feels that such actions were not in conformity with law and with the intent of the Congress," and expressed the desire "that further construction of Capehart housing not be initiated prior to the acquisition, or definite agreements for the acquisition, of Wherry housing."

■ SCHENECTADY, N. Y. — The Teen-age Group of Schenectady General Depot have completed a successful social season. This group consists of approximately 30 members, most of whom have attended all of the activities of the past season.

The season began with a business meeting and election, at which Patricia ("Pat") M. Quinn, daughter of Col. and Mrs. James F.

See Blue Angels

■ SAN DIEGO, CALIF.—Governors from 10 western states attended the Fiesta del Pacifico last week end, with the Navy Air Show, featuring the Blue Angels, the principal daytime attraction, and the Governor's Ball following in the evening.

At Miramar, where the Show took place, the visiting dignitaries and their wives were honored at a buffet luncheon. Capt. Norwood A. Campbell, commanding the NAS, and Mrs. Campbell greeted the visitors and acting as hostesses with them were Mesdames L. S. Sims, G. C. Lyne, E. G. Johnson, J. W. Roberts, R. D. Lindelof, A. J. Papageorge, C. C. Fisher, E. L. McCord, R. N. Rulman, H. T. Johnson, J. T. Biddy, W. A. Racette, J. B. Julian, R. W. Calland, S. B. Simons, A. B. Hansen, E. L. Ryan, R. T. Rutzel, H. D. Knosp, W. G. Williams, F. W. Brown and WAVE officers, Lt. (jg) M. N. Clark and Lt. (jg) D. M. Wait.

Four doctors attached to the U. S. Naval Hospital have received their promotions to captain. To celebrate they will be hosts, with their wives, at a "wetting down" party to be held in the beautiful garden at the MCRD Commissioned Officers' Club on Sunday afternoon. Two hundred guests have been invited to attend, the invitations having been issued by Capt. and Mesdames Harry A. Weiss, Rudolph Nadbath, James Kaufman and Ralph Fawcett.

Quinn, was elected President. "Pat" led the club through a season of varied activities, and Mrs. Quinn did a grand job of providing advice and guidance to the group.

One of the most spectacular parties of the season was the "Barn Dance". Maj. Caddie L. Henage supervised the decorating committee (consisting of a number of the children), in transforming the depot "teen-age club" (which does double duty as a nursery when teen-agers are not using it) into a barn. There were horse stalls, complete with realistic pictures of horses inside, and hay racks containing real hay (processed to be fire resistant, of course). Further atmosphere was derived from lanterns, saddles, bridles and normal barn fixtures; and farm type clothing was worn.

Another interesting activity was the combined ice-skating party and hot dog roast, held during the skating season. The tennis court was flooded and provided an excellent skating rink; the large outdoor cooking oven nearby was ideal for roasting the dogs while hot chocolate and cookies were brought from a nearby kitchen. Beautiful waltz music was played on a phonograph at an open window in a nearby building.

At least one teen-age function was held every month, supervised by mothers of the members. Mrs. Arthur D. Cruze, assisted by other mothers, arranged for and served adequate and tasty refreshments, which were paid for by the treasury. Dues provided the treasury funds (50c per month per member), the Depot Women's Club gave the children a phonograph and the Officers' Club assisted by loaning cooking utensils and similar items for the children's events. The other officers of the Teen-age Group who assisted "Pat" through this season were David C. Cruze, Vice President, and Curtis N. Marsh III, Secretary-Treasurer.

The last meeting of the season was a hot dog roast at which elections for the next season were held. The group elected Larry N. Cook, President; Nancy A. Leary, Vice President, and Caddie L. Henage, Jr., Secretary-Treasurer. They are already deep in their plans to make the next season as successful at the last one.

Pay Hearings

tain a detailed report on the opening sessions.

At the Pentagon, Defense Department spokesmen said this week that Secretary Charles E. Wilson still has on his desk plans to put into effect the $49 million proficiency pay increase he announced in May for enlisted specialists.

There were some reports circulating that the Defense Department was stalling on the start of this pay plan because of the urgent budget situation.

Plans for the start of pay hearings were told in an announcement by Senator John Stennis (D-Miss.), Chairman of the Armed Services Subcommittee. He said:

"THE SUBCOMMITTEE WILL BEGIN hearings on Wednesday 21 August at 10 a.m. on S. 2014 introduced by Senators Symington and Goldwater.

"The first witness will be Mr. Ralph J. Cordiner, President of the General Electric Company, who was Chairman of the Department of Defense Advisory Committee which recommended the military pay allowances in the pending legislation. Due to the short period remaining in this session of Congress the hearings will be limited for the present time. The subcommittee is conferring with the Department of Defense regarding an appropriate time for Departmental testimony.

"The principal aim of the hearing of next week will be to ascertain the scope and reasons for the recommendations of Mr. Cordiner's advisory committee. The subcommittee contemplates a full-scale inquiry of the manpower policies of the Department of Defense affecting military pay problems. The major effort in this regard will necessarily be deferred until the next session of Congress in order for the subcommittee to obtain the necessary information and in order to hear the extensive testimony which will be required."

2 New Copter Units; Jump From Otters

Two Army H-21 helicopter companies with supporting field maintenance detachments will be activated 12 Sept., at Marshall Field, Ft. Riley, Kans.

Each of the companies, equipped with 21 of the large twin-rotor helicopters, will be staffed with 12 officers, 34 warrant officers and 101 enlisted men.

Col. Kenneth K. Keller, Post Transportation Officer, said there are 51 H-21 helicopters at Marshall Field. Thirty additional H-21's are scheduled for delivery in the near future.

The Army Aviation Unit Training Command at Riley recently received a Vertol Aircraft Corporation certificate of achievement when one of its H-21's logged 1,000 hours to become the first machine of its type in the world to do so, according to Vertol spokesmen.

Zeppelins In Atomic Age Subject of New Study

The Zeppelin may prove to be the much-sought-after answer to the need for an effective and inexpensive early warning system, says Edwin J. Kirschner, former Air Force plans analyst.

In his new book, "The Zeppelin In The Atomic Age," Mr. Kirschner points out the unique adaptability of atomic engine to lighter than air craft. "Because of the rigid airship's huge lifting capacity, and its spacious storage areas," he declares, "it is more suited to the airborne atomic engine than any other existing aircraft."

While other nations stopped building lighter-than-air ships because the only accessible lifting gas was highly-inflammable hydrogen, "the only nation in the world with a plentiful supply of non-inflammable and non-explosive helium, the United States, halted the airship program at the height of its development."

In addition to the zeppelin's possible uses as a cargo carrier, hospital ship, and observation platform, the author maintains that it can carry parasite jet fighters and arm itself with rocket and missile platforms.

For peacetime use, Mr. Kirschner envisions the economic feasibility of an airship line, which could be quickly converted in time of need to military purposes. However, he says, governmental aid would be necessary.

As a final use for the lighter-than-air ship, Mr. Kirschner proposes that it be employed in any aerial inspection set-up adopted for disarmament.

The author points out that there is "every indication that the new type of rigid airship, when used in conjunction with the satellite or jet-photo reconnaissance aircraft, would contribute to a more reliable and economical aerial inspection and control system."

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

New Flight Gear Sought to Give Pilots Greater Safety, Mobility and Comfort

Light-weight flight gear that will give supersonic pilots greater safety, more mobility and increased comfort is being developed for the Air Force by a subcommittee of the Industry Crew Escape Systems Committee.

The ICESC, it is reported, has combined in a single three section flying suit the protection now embodied in five separate garments.

The helmet section of the new suit, spokesmen say, permits greater mobility than present MA-2 and MA-3 standard helmets. While present helmets permit almost no mobility under pressure, the new ICESC helmet will permit a pilot to turn his head easily 90 degrees in either direction.

The new gloves are made in two parts. One part, fingerless, pressurizes the back of the hand. The second covers the fingers without pressurization. Tests have shown that if the fingers are not enclosed in the pressurized part of the glove, the pilot's hands do not lose the mobility and dexterity they do with present equipment.

Flight boots, built for the ICESC by Chippewa of Wisconsin, are sized to the wearer's foot with nylon laces and are closed by a zipper. Once the pilot laces the boots to size, he has only to zip them open and closed. The new boots float, making it unnecessary to remove them after ditching.

The new flight outfit, according to W. H. Reineking, design specialist in charge of the Convair Human Engineering Group:

Combines into one three-piece suit the five separate garments now required for survival (waterproofing); for warmth (thermal liner); for cooling (ventilating suit); for pressure (partial pressure suit) and underwear.

Adds up to 10 seconds' additional protection from burns in case of cockpit fires.

Floats a pilot face-up—even when unconscious—with full gear and in cold water without undue exposure.

Reduces by about one third the time it now takes a pilot to don the full complement of personal equipment.

Decreases the bulk of the equipment.

The new gear has been tested exhaustively for pressure in the altitude chamber at Randolph AFB, Tex.; for immersion in a San Diego swimming pool; for fire resistance at Convair-San Diego, and for wind blast and deceleration stresses at the Air Force's SMART track at Hurricane Mesa, Utah.

The ICESC is composed of 13 major aircraft companies or divisions of companies working cooperatively on pilot escape system problems. Convair (San Diego) Division of General Dynamics Corporation chairs the ICESC development work on upward ejection.

Builders Of Defense In Industry

PENNSYLVANIA TIRE and ESSO RESEARCH AND ENGINEERING COMPANIES, under contract to the Army, have developed an all-synthetic, heavy-duty truck tire, with resulting independence from natural rubber imports. The tires are made of butyl, a synthetic rubber created from oil refinery gasses.

PHILCO CORPORATION'S Government and Industrial Division has built a new type, compact and lightweight electronic trigger for the Navy. Particularly suited to airborne operations, the trigger occupies only .65 cubic foot of space and weighs 16 pounds when installed in a standard aircraft shock-mounted rack.

CORNELL AERONAUTICAL LABORATORY of Buffalo, N. Y., under a $700,000 Air Force contract, has developed a "variable stability and control airplane," a modification of the T-33 jet trainer. The modification consists of the installation of an automatic control system designed to simulate changes in the aircraft's physical characteristics—as if it had shorter wings, larger tail, different mass distribution, etc. Control and handling characteristics for the pilot can be varied widely in flight by simply changing a number of knob settings.

FAIRCHILD ENGINE AND AIRPLANE CORPORATION has been awarded $30 million in Boeing subcontracts for major B-52 components. The contracts involve the manufacture of vertical tail fins, outer wing panels and a major fuselage section. The Fairchild Company announced a backlog of $180 million. Of this, more than $30 million is in commercial business, the remainder military.

CONSOLIDATED ELECTRODYNAMICS CORP. has received an $80,000 Air Research and Development Command contract for magnetic tape recorder-producer equipment. This equipment is similar to the instrumentation previously supplied to ARDC's Missile Test Center at Patrick AFB, Fla., for testing ballistic missiles.

CURTIS-WRIGHT CORP. has appointed Dr. Ernest A. Steinhoff to direct the Air Force missiles department at its subsidiary, the Aerophysics Development Corporation, Santa Barbara, Calif. Since 1950, Dr. Steinhoff has been Technical Director of the Holloman Air Development Center and a member of the ARDC Technical Management.

RAMO-WOOLDRIDGE CORPORATION'S Guided Missile Research Division has added Dow C. Pruitt to its organization in Los Angeles. Mr. Pruitt was a senior Air Force pilot on active duty for the periods 1940-5 and 1950-5. He was awarded the DFC and Air Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters during WWII.

New Engine Family Bought By Army CE

The Army Corps of Engineers is purchasing the first three available sizes of a new family of air-cooled gasoline engines, designed to require less than eight per cent of the stock parts called for on previous engines.

Ranging in six sizes from ¼ to 20 horsepower, the industrial-type engines are designed to replace the 78 sizes and types of gasoline engines now in use or used in WWII.

Designed especially for military use, the new standard engine family will have a longer operation life. There will be a maximum of 100 to 200 parts or assemblies required for stockage as compared with the 23,000 necessary to keep gasoline engines of this size going in WWII.

The service life of the new engines without overhaul is expected to be not less than 1,500 hours.

A total of 1,000 engines each of the ¼, 1½ and 3 horsepower size are being manufactured at the Continental Motors, Detroit, Mich., to determine whether they can be mass produced. Pre-production engines have been tested by the Corps of Engineers, Ordnance Corps, Signal Corps, Quartermaster Corps and Chemical Corps.

New PX Chief

New assignments of top level executive officers at three of the five domestic Service Centers of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service are announced by Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, Chief of A&AFES.

Under the new concept for exchange operations, the Chiefs of Service Centers will assist major commanders in their operations of exchanges under the command's jurisdiction. The service centers continue to provide technical aid and work with exchanges to improve service to military personnel and their dependents.

Col. John W. Rushing has been assigned to supervise activities at Chicago, succeeding Col. John W. Gwinn, who will move to the New York Headquarters.

Col. William E. Murphy, Jr., USA, the new Chief, Baltimore Service Center, assumes command there succeeding Lt. Col. Robert W. Endsley, USAF, who has transferred to New York as the Director of Administrative Division, Hq A&AFES.

Second in command at the Baltimore Center is Lt. Col. Arnold C. Eliason, USAF, succeeding Lt. Col. John D. Sullivan as Deputy Chief.

Lt. Col. Guy F. Maddox, USAF, the newly assigned Deputy Chief, will serve directly under Colonel Vernon W. Huller, present Chief of the Atlanta Service Center.

HIGH FLYING B-57's

Petersen AFB, Colo., with an elevation of 6,172 feet, is the highest USAF operational base in the United States.

300 Soldiers Eat For Army Progress

Two companies of soldiers, at Ft. Lee, Va., this winter will act as voluntary samplers of the Army's experimental irradiated foods in order to determine their acceptability on the basis of flavor and texture.

The feeding test is designed to prove that food preserved by ionizing radiation is acceptable to troops.

Irradiated foods will be provided to selected mess halls in the same manner as regular food supplies, and prepared by cooks according to standard Army recipes. Troops will not be informed when an irradiated food is being served.

The tests will be conducted under the direction of the Army Quartermaster and Surgeon Generals by the Quartermaster Research and Engineering Field Evaluation Agency at Ft. Lee.

Personnel and cryptographic training departments, transferred from Scott AFB, Ill., will be added this month to the 3275th Technical Training Group at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Under the program no students will be transferred from Scott. New students scheduled to enter personnel and cryptographic courses will be sent to Lackland as instruction at Scott is phased out.

TAC Streamlines 18 Combat Wings, Cuts Sqdn. Aircraft, But Boosts Units

The Tactical Air Command will complete reorganization at six bases by the end of August.

TAC is streamlining 18 combat wings into nine air divisions. Each wing will consist of four combat squadrons.

Air division headquarters will be composed of 10 officers and seven airmen. This arrangement will relieve the air division commander, who is the combat commander, of his present duties of base administration and allow him to devote more time to the proficiency training of the two combat wings under his command.

An air base group assigned under each air division will assume the responsibilities of base administration. The commander of the air base group will be the base commander.

THIS REORGANIZATION avoids duplication in the group headquarters function and allows all maintenance and administrative functions to be centralized.

TAC's decision to reduce the number of aircraft per squadron and to increase the number of combat squadrons is the result of the recent practice of using smaller numbers of aircraft during simulated combat operations. TAC's improved firepower and combat techniques have made this reorganization feasible. The principle is most apparent in recent deployment of TAC's tailored-strength Composite Air Strike Forces—USAF's answer to limited aggression.

An east-west separation of command responsibilities between Eighteenth Air Force and Ninth Air Force is considered consonant with the principles of good management. Therefore, Eighteenth Air Force Headquarters at Donaldson AFB, S. C., is being moved to Waco, Tex., to command the western area. Ninth Air Force Headquarters will remain at Shaw AFB, S. C., to command the eastern bases.

On 1 September the Eighteenth Air Force will release to Ninth Air Force all troop carrier wings now under its command and begin moving its headquarters to Texas. After 1 October the Eighteenth will resume full command responsibilities and take charge of Ninth Air Force units now stationed on eight TAC installations west of the Mississippi.

As part of this switch of missions and bases among its air forces, TAC will exchange key operations personnel between the Ninth Air Force and Eighteenth Air Force Headquarters to maintain a consistent program. Throughout the exchange of units, tactical operations and commitments will neither be curtailed or cancelled.

TAC BASES AND ORGANIZATIONS begin assigned to the Eighteenth Air Force are the 831st Air Division (Fighter Day), George AFB, Calif.; 832d Air Division (Fighter-Bomber), Cannon AFB, N. Mex.; 833d Air Division (Fighter Day), Foster AFB, Tex.; 834th Air Division (Fighter-Bomber), England AFB, La.; and the 42d Air Division (Fighter Day and Fighter-Bomber), Bergstrom AFB, Tex.

The Eighteenth Air Force will also receive the 506th Fighter Day Wing stationed at Tinker AFB, Okla.; the 4432d Air Base Squadron at Wendover AFB, Utah and the 1st Tow Target Squadron at Biggs AFB, Texas.

Ninth Air Force units after 1 October will be the 836th Air Division (Fighter-Bomber and Tactical Bomber), Langley AFB, Va.; 837th Air Division (Tactical Reconnaissance), Shaw AFB, S. C.; 838th Air Division (Troop Carrier) Ardmore AFB, Okla.; 839th Air Division (Troop Carrier) Sewart AFB, Tenn.; 461st Bomb Wg., Blytheville AFB, Ark.; 354th Fighter Day Wing, Myrtle Beach AFB, S. C.; 464th Troop Carrier Wing, Pope AFB, N. C.; 83d Fighter Day Wing, Seymour Johnson AFB, N. C.; and 31st Fighter Bomber Wing, Turner AFB, Ga.

THE NINTH AIR FORCE will control the following wings on non-TAC bases: 17th Bomb Wing, Eglin Air Force Auxiliary Field #9, Fla.; 4504th Tactical Missile Wing, Orlando AFB, Fla.; 2d Tow Target Squadron, Mitchel AFB, N. Y.; 427th Air Refueling Squadron, Robins AFB, Ga.; and the 21st Helicopter Squadron, Donaldson AFB, S. C.

Both Nineteenth Air Force headquarters at Foster AFB and the Air Ground Operations School at Keesler AFB, Miss., will continue to report directly to TAC headquarters.

lished here and seven months later was disbanded. It was followed by the Adjutant General's School which stayed less than a year. Also present for duty during the post-war period was the Military Police School which remained only for a "one night stand," so to speak, from January 1947 until November 1948. In April 1949 the Army Security Agency School was moved here from Arlington Farms, Va., and remained at Carlisle Barracks until April 1951, when the school was moved to Fort Devens, Mass.

THE ARMY'S TOP SCHOOL, the United States Army War College, now Commanded by Maj. Gen. Max S. Johnson, moved here from a temporary location at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., on 1 July, 1951. Established by Secretary of War Elihu Root in 1901, the College was founded so that selected officers could be given instruction to prepare them for top staff and command positions in the Army. The student body is composed of 200 senior officers. The majority of students are Army officers, but there are representatives from the Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force, Department of State and certain other civilian government agencies. The 10-month course of instruction is conducted at the top post-graduate level through addresses by prominent military and civilian guest lecturers, committee work and conferences. The academic year culminates in June with a National Strategy Seminar, during which leading Americans from all walks of life join the students in consideration of problems relating to future national strategy.

Services Must Whack, Cut and Close In Budget Crisis; Phase II Coming

and possibly the drop back of the Army below its 17 present divisions.

It is seen likely that Congress, now aware that the Pentagon considers it possible to cut below what was once called a "peril point" level, will insist on further reductions next year with an eye to an election-year tax reduction.

There is no doubt that General Nathan F. Twining, USAF, the new Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who took over this week from retiring Admiral Arthur W. Radford and Secretary of Defense designate Neil H. McElroy face immediate budget troubles that will persist because of steadily rising costs and the advent of such expensive new weapons as missiles.

Future problems, though foreseen, had to be put aside this week as the Pentagon tended to the urgent matter at hand. This was to slash spending right now in order to keep the Government from going over the $275 billion debt ceiling.

The Air Force and Navy, which have been running up bills far above estimates in the budget sent by President Eisenhower to Congress last January, were told they could spend more money than previously forecast but that they must cut current expenditures drastically.

The Air Force has been spending at a rate of $19.2 billion a year, compared with $17.6 billion estimate for the FY '58 budget. Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson said the Air Force may spend at a $17.9 billion level.

Just as the Air Force was given $300 million more than originally estimated, the Navy will be allowed to spend $10.4 billion this fiscal year, or $11 million more than previously estimated. The Navy, however, has been expending money at an $11 billion clip.

The Army, which had been granted $9.1 billion in the fiscal '58 estimates, has been revised downward to $8.9 billion. The latest figures show that the Army was spending at a rate of $9 billion per year, which is less than the budget estimates.

All of the Services, with the exception of the Marine Corps, this week were speeding action on involuntary forcecuts and early releases to meet revised manpower goals.

The Pentagon was making cutback announcements at the rate of several a day with more expected during the next week.

As THE JOURNAL went to press there had been these developments on the manpower front:

ARMY—Boards were working to select about 1,500 officers for involuntary separation. Most will be notified by mid-October, all of them by 1 November. These officers will be given 60 days notice and travel time.

The Army also cut the draft call again, this time from 8,000 to 7,000. An Army spokesman told THE JOURNAL some officer promotions probably will be made this month, though it was not certain how many. This was seen as a bright spot in the over-all picture, indicating that the budget picture has not resulted in a ban on promotions.

NAVY—Notification went out to 100 Reserve warrant officers that they will be released in December. Fifty-two temporary commanders and 154 temporary lieutenant commanders were told they must revert to permanent status or retire by 1 January.

The Navy said 18,000 civilians will be released in the cutback program.

AIR FORCE—Plans were announced to eliminate 20,000 civilians from the payroll by the end of October. This parallels a 25,000 cut in military manpower previously ordered.

The Air Force said it must release 3,800 officers and 21,200 Airmen to reach its new military personnel level of 900,000 by 1 Jan.

Most of this cutback will be by the "early release" method but there will be some forced releases, particularly of airmen with low aptitudes.

MARINE CORPS—The cuts in the other Services and early release programs of the Army, Navy and Air Force prompted the Marines to issue a statement which reported that there will be no involuntary releases or early-outs in Leatherneck officer or enlisted ranks. Normal attrition and reduced recruit input will get the Marines down to 190,000 by the end of the year.

THE BUDGET CRISIS prompted the Pentagon to reduce the percentage of progress payments to suppliers of military materiel. As THE JOURNAL went to press the Services were preparing other announcements, including the closing of some facilities to reach the $38 billion level.

It was noted by Pentagon observers that legislative liaison officials—and not the Pentagon public information people—were calling the shots on the timing of announcements concerning the cutbacks. Newsmen were being advised that Capitol Hill must get the word first; then come the press and public.
